

Monique Naifeh is a general pediatrician who primarily practices hospital medicine. She is also an associate program director for the pediatric residency program at the University of Oklahoma. As the mother of three active, school age children, she has a special interest in sports medicine and is eagerly anticipating a productive CME conference.