

Dr. Mary Beth Humphrey is an associate professor of medicine and rheumatology at the University of Oklahoma Health Sciences Center. She obtained her MD and PHD at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston before completing internal medicine and rheumatology at the University of California San Francisco. In addition to her clinical rheumatology, she has an active laboratory focusing on osteoporosis and lupus research.