

Dr. Amy Emerson has enjoyed working with the families of Tulsa Educare since 2008, and now is involved in community outreach for the Tulsa area in conjunction with the Talking is Teaching campaign. Her team has created a curriculum focused on early brain growth for families of children birth to five and actively works with entities such as faith-based institutions, in-home daycare centers and residential rehabilitation centers to host family engagement activities. She is actively involved with many area Reach Out & Read clinics and advocacy work to support children living in foster care.
